Bigger Wages, Better Living Conditions Planned By Roosevelt

Land Utilization Legislation, Stabilized Pay For Farm and Industry, Wider Trading Facilities on Program of Special Session Just Called

The speech from his bedside in Washington, D.C., made by President Roosevelt on Tuesday night is of such outstanding importance in view of world conditions today, that The Bulletin is herewith reproducing it in full. Part of the speech was not carried on Canadian Press wires, but The Bulletin, believing that its readers should be kept informed of these trends of the time, made special arrangements to have the full transcript of the speech brought to Edmonton. It is published hereafter—EDITOR.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—President Roosevelt has called a special session of the United States Congress to consider legislation which he said would stabilize the income of the farmer and increase the income of the lower-paid employees of United States industry.

To these tasks he added:

1.—Land utilization legislation—spreading of the Tennessee Valley administration idea to other sections of the country.

2.—Reorganization of the executive branch of the government.

3.—(Temporarily) Anti-monopoly legislation.

His plan was unfolded in a nationwide radio broadcast last evening which he called a "fireside chat". The full text of the speech is as follows:

This afternoon I issued a proclamation calling a special session of the Congress to convene on Monday, November 15.

Session Not Unfortunate

I do this in order to give to the Congress an opportunity to consider important legislation before the regular session in November, and to enable the Congress to avoid a lengthy session next year, extending through the summer.

I know that many enemies of democracy will say that it is bad business, bad for the tranquility of the country to have a special session—even one beginning only six weeks before the regular session.

But I have never had sympathy with the point of view that a session of the Congress is an unfortunate intrusion upon what they call "politics" into our national affairs. Those who do not like democracy want to keep legislators at home.

NEARLY BACK AGAIN INDICATE JAPANESE MILITARY MOVEMENTS

TOKYO, Oct. 13.—Chinese, who thought I did not see the play, I heard of in the Yiddish Act Theatre, where my close friend, Maurice Schwartz, has the big success of his new play, "The Story of the Chinese Revolution".

It is staged in the old Al Jolson Theatre, which the Schwartzs built in New York, in the city of the height of his fame, but where they lost a fortune.

Jolson's luck free would turn where could be none for the crowded audience, hundreds standing, all of them cheering and shouting.

It is a story of greed, exploitation, revolution and blood.

Schwartz, who more starred for two years in London, sleeping in the streets, after having a stroke, missed his family in their rush from New York, in the city of the height of his fame, but where they lost a fortune.

ATTITUDE NOT TO BE DOCEILELY ACCEPTED FROM ANY OUTSIDER

Lord Tweedsmuir Makes Important Speech in East

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—Canada as a sovereign nation cannot "take her attitude to the world" from Britain or from the United States or from anybody else. Lord Tweedsmuir said last night in an address before the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. A Canadian first loyalty is not to the British Commonwealth of Nations, but to Canada, the Government of Canada declared, and those who deny this are doing to my mind, a great disservice to the Commonwealth. Nations of the empire must think out their own special problems.

King Present

Lord Tweedsmuir spoke at a banquet marking the institute's 10th anniversary. The gathering included some ministerial members. King and Mrs. W. R. Rowell, chief justice of Ontario, John W. Diefenbaker, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

As personal representative of the King in Canada, the Governor-General said he had had a long talk with him before his departure. He had his views on international politics, but they were at present not for publication.

His Excellency spoke of the need for peace and security in the world, and of the importance of the Commonwealth of Nations in the world. He said that the Commonwealth of Nations is a group of officials at the foreign office. The foreign policy of a country is the result of the sum of the views of its individual states, and it is the duty of the Commonwealth of Nations to ensure that the views of its members are taken into account.

Armament Race Bound To Loom Large in Coming Debates

LONDON, Oct. 12.—In the quiet of government departments along Whitehall, experts are working on legislation for the coming session of parliament.

It promises to be a session of debate with regard to the arms race, the growing burden of armaments, and the claims of international law. It will be the first session to be opened by King George VI.

KIDDIES ROMP TWO DAYS BY DEAD MOTHER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Their mother was dead, but the five Cline children, last night thought she was "just asleep," so they romped for two days while she lay there. An insurance man called at the apartment yesterday to collect payment from the woman, Mrs. Alice Cline, 36, a widow.

"She asleep," Bernard, 11, told him.

The agent suggested she be wakened. Bernard refused to wake her up. A doctor said she had been dead at least 48 hours, apparently from natural causes.

WIAN TO FACE MURDER TRIAL IN WIFE DEATH

Edward Gougou of Girouville Has Preliminary Hearing

Edmonton Bulletin. —Edmond Gougou, 36, farmer of Girouville, was committed for trial on a charge of murdering his wife in their farm home, when he appeared for preliminary hearing before Magistrate W. M. Stewart of Peace River, on Tuesday.

Coroner Dr. J. F. Fitch read an anti-mortem statement of Mrs. Gougou, in which she said: "I declare that it was my husband who shot me with a rifle Oct. 1, 1937."

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly
Boxla Independent
Fighting Opens
Hockey Gossip

Five year things are going, the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada will soon look like the Light Brigade after its famous last charge. Yesterday the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association arose in its annual pose and severed its affiliation with the A.A.U. In fact the boxla boxes got so hot that they even deleted the word "amateur" from the name of their association.

That doesn't mean that lacrosse is turning pro—at least not any more than it has always been. It simply means that lacrosse is fed up on the silly story that must result when out-moded amateur definitions are seriously insisted on. The declaration of independence which the boxla boxes drafted is practically a duplicate of the famous "Four Points" that hockey threatened.

After all, for last time, free mingling of pro and amateurs on the same team, free re-instatement of pro who are quitting the amateur game and allowing pro in other sports to play lacrosse as amateurs are the chief points in the new policy adopted by the C.L.A. They are all reasonable and sound.

When the A.A.U. of C. at its general meeting in Regina renewed down hockey's plea for a revision of amateur definitions and regulation, we made the forecast that the old boys had fallen over a cliff in their perpetual sleep and would probably not wake up to the fact until they landed with a thud at the bottom. Now that famous Regina convention, the A.A.U. has lost hockey, basketball and lacrosse—the three major sports in their field.

There is a worthwhile loss behind a union or central association of Canada's sports. Such a body can be a useful one. However, such a body must keep abreast of the times and be representative of the wishes of organizations it represents. The A.A.U. has failed miserably in this respect. Its officials have taken the stand that they are the directors of Canadian sports and their attitude has been "Wiggle one of 'em or let 'em leave it." So the most of the boys appear to prefer to leave it.

Early Hockey Opening Mooted

There is a general feeling among hockey mugs here and in Calgary that the Big Six League should open by November 13 rather than leaving things open until December 4, the opening date the schedule now calls for. President Jim Deane will be in Edmonton this week and deal with this suggestion. The chief objection is that it is Olds and Drummondville will not have time to get ready for it.

Hockey Gossip From The Boulevards

MARK MALVERTY, former Edmonton junior puckster, will play in the B series of the Sudbury Telen-Alex cup holders, this winter. He played last season at centre for the Minneapolis amateur club that Joe Simpson is coaching. He has a big season and seems definitely headed in the right direction.

McKee McGuire Fights Here Nov. 2.

PROMOTER Fred Osborne announced last night that he would stage his first fight of the season on November 2 with Mickey McGuire pitted against Tiger Al Lewis of Seattle over the 10-round route. This fight promises to be really hot. Lewis has been fighting in the boxing world on New England cards in Seattle a number of years and is a recognized real horse in the western division. Mickey has improved greatly as a result of a summer spent working out with a number of headliners on the Pacific Coast. He gave impressive gym performances against Robbo and Hal Hooton. Mack Hooton's manager, is convinced that McGuire has real championship class.

Spendlove Hurls Second Challenge at Ruppenthal

King Kong Clayton To CHICAGO'S CUBS
Wrestle Adams While DeBlivick vs. Frank TIE UP SERIES

With nothing at stake but the match last week Duke Ruppenthal was defeated by King Kong Clayton, boxer dramatic, but the Friday night at the Montreal Ruppenthal wants a good chance of losing his last remaining season. He means Billy Spendlove in the main event of Mike Costello's week of wrestling near. The western Canada belt will be stake Friday.

It is the second classic Spendlove has had against Ruppenthal. Billy spent the first bout in a close, hard fought battle, but he was out of his mind. He can give the rugged Spendlove a good fight. He has been in the ring for a long time and has been in the ring for a long time. He has been in the ring for a long time and has been in the ring for a long time.

Coach Coulson Opens Negotiations To Strengthen Edmonton Dominions

Walter McIntyre Possible New Player for Local Hockey Squad

Back from a scouting trip to the New York American hockey school at Calgary, Coach Frank Coulson of the Dominions announced last night that he had opened negotiations to bring Walter McIntyre, one of North America's best players, to the team.

McIntyre is a left defence lanky and Coulson is convinced that an answer to his need for a left defence is in the N.Y. school. He should be a mighty asset to the Dominions.

Coulson interviewed a number of players on his trip but explained that he will not know anything definitely until the American school has returned this Saturday. Friday is the closing date for the American school, so the west-enders are expected to bring announcements of their plans to the city.

CLASNY SQUAD—There are some 36 pucksters working out at Dutton's hockey school at present and among them are a number who have real promise.

Earl Robertson, who flattered to the delight in N.Y., played last night for the Dominions. Robertson is a fine player and is expected to be a member of the team.

It is Stuart has nothing definite to announce last night on his return. He is expected to be a member of the team.

Work on the new artificial ice plant advanced with great rapidity at initial footings were given yesterday. There is already a thin sheet of ice on the surface.

CITY JOCKEY BOOTS HOME SEABISCUIT

Johnny "Red" Pollard Is Winning Jockey In Easy Triumph

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Seabiscuit, a four-year-old son of War God, who was sold last year for only $7,000, became the king of money winners for the 1937 United States racing season Tuesday.

By winning the 113th continental handicap over a 1 1/2 mile at Jamaica, Seabiscuit again proved he is easily the best of the other horses in training. In addition to that, he showed himself the most valuable to his owner by bringing his winnings to $113,700 above the first of the year.

Parker was Admiral. Tuesday's early-evening purse of $10,000 was won by Seabiscuit, who was ridden by Johnny "Red" Pollard of Edmond, had won.

Adopt Similar Plan Now Being Operated By Amateur Hockey

VANCOUVER, Oct. 13.—The Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association Tuesday ended its affiliation with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and changed its own name.

At the annual meeting held here, the lacrosse body deleted the word "amateur" from its name, to become the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

Lacrosse thus became the third professional sport to break with the Dominion Athletic Union, two years ago the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decided to go its own way, and last year similar action was taken by the Canadian Amateur Football Association.

The annual meeting further decided that:

Professionals be defined as persons deriving income from participation in lacrosse games "over and above the salary for regular employment during actual operation of lacrosse schedules," such legal allowance to be defined as the "personal loss resulting from enforced absence from regular employment."

Professionals in other sports may receive amateur status in lacrosse. Professionals may be reinstated upon application and compliance with the C.L.A.'s definition of amateur.

Professionals and amateurs may be permitted to play together on the same team.

No regulated player may play outside Canada unless he receives permission from the C.L.A. players violating this rule will be barred from future games under jurisdiction of the Dominion Association.

TO HELP JUNIORS—At business sessions Monday night, the C.L.A. and the Ontario and British Columbia branches of the association agreed to assume proportionate financial obligation to guarantee the Junior Canadian lacrosse playoffs for the Minto cup this year.

Montreal and Ottawa will play at the same time in eastern Canada, while Vancouver and Seattle will play at the same time in western Canada.

Asturian Troops Are Putting Up Stiff Resistance, Franco Admits

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 13.—Spanish insurgent troops, battling against the regular forces of the government, reported today that Asturian lines were holding firmly, but a clean-up drive on the north coast.

General Franco trained his artillery on the Sella Valley, after capturing small villages along the Cantabria de Ojeda, and quivered gun movements near Arriondas along the Ribadesella-Oviedo road.

TOWN IN RUINS
The insurgents said they found between 1,200 inhabitants, mostly women and children, in Cangas de Onís, which normally has a population of 11,000. The town was destroyed by a virtually unopposed assault of dynamite and fire.

Meanwhile, the insurgents continued an artillery bombardment of Madrid. Several hundred persons were injured when the shells fell at its height. Government sources estimated 1,152 shells dropped in Madrid in one hour.

REBELS CHECKED
An "important offensive" was underway, the insurgent high command announced, on the Leon province, from which the rebels had given no details of the fighting in this sector.

On the southern front the government reported its forces checked an insurgent advance and counter-attacked, regaining lost ground. The road from San Sebastian to Duque to Reñeta.

At Cerezo, Spanish government sources disclosed all important ministries would be moved shortly to Valencia, that present seat of Barcelona.

W. H. Fisher Tells Edmonton Sportsmen About Famous Yukon Gambler

Members of the Northern Alberta Club and Golf Association took up the league's staff Tuesday night for a story of adventure as well as a tale of the life of a famous gambler who lived in the Yukon.

W. H. Fisher, who narrated tonight's story, said that the famous gambler, who lived in the Yukon, was a man of many talents.

Known throughout the Yukon as "Soap" Fisher, friend of Robert W. Service, architect of "Scotty" in the trail of '98, in which the great of Yukon stories sought to explain the deeds of the men who were the characters of the story.

Fisher thrilled a large audience with his recollections of how he sought gold and often found it in "Soap" Smith, a famous gambler, who "ruined" the money entering the Yukon and made a big fortune there, but who was a honest man, looked more like a clergyman than a gambler.

FAVORITE TRICK
Soap's favorite trick, he continued, was to fleece men of their money by starting a "game" and having one of his aides black-jack the victim, stripping him of his total stake of $1,000.

Tales of how mines abandoned by their owners later were found by fortune-making prospectors in those who had abandoned operations in the Yukon, but by luck than by deliberate design, formed part of Mr. Fisher's recollections.

Dances in the Yukon, which continued in leading quarter areas, had no less than three or four dances each, he said.

DANCED FOR NOTHING
But he once had danced with the girl and in the Yukon, he said, he had seen the girl live by handing back her lost purse with all the money she owned it in.

In gratitude she made him the owner of the Yukon by letting him get a dance for nothing.

And Indians too, were not as bad as some of their detractors have painted them, Mr. Fisher insisted.

They were kind, hospitable, eager to help and skilled in their lore of word and deed.

From the Kingdom of the Wild: Way of the Beaver

METIEE CREEK
Just off the trail while on the way to California Lake, which lies on a rocky bench above the Metiee, I came upon a stocky, heavy-chested man garbed in tweeds and riding breeches. He seemed to belong to the landscape.

"What do you know about the beaver?" I asked without preamble. He replied in a soft, Scotch-Irish brogue: "Nobody knows all there is to know about that animal. I wouldn't accept some of the things I could tell you concerning the beaver."

He was Robert H. Davis, a beaver hunter, who had been in Jasper Park for nine years. "I am a beaver," he said.

"So mine, but go ahead," I believe you. Does the beaver possess reasoning power?"

"Professor Adelphi Meyer, chief of the mental division of Johns Hopkins, says so. He was up here several years ago and we agreed absolutely on the point. Most wild animals are supposed to be created by instinct. That may be true in a broad sense, but the beaver goes beyond that. He plans to build a dam. If his campaign is interfered with either by the owner of the dam or the opposition of mankind, he immediately makes other plans."

I suppose you know that beavers build their building at night?" "I was not aware of that," he replied.

"They do. Sleep in the daytime and come out at sundown to do the job. At the foot of Pyramid Mountain there is a small dam. A family of beavers put in thirty-four days at the dam, and the water so that it came down the door side of some dam on the shore. We were that time to the course of the last year and they rebuilt it each year."

"How many of them were at work?" "Not more than eight or ten. Finally they did some reasoning along engineering lines. On the old right-of-way used by the Grand Trunk Railroad were a number of wooden ties, piled and dry. The beavers selected six, rolled them down to the water line and floated them to the broken dam, across which they had constructed a network of willows and brush sufficient to back but not stem the tide. They used the ties, head on, one at a time, until they had a solid barrier. Then four or five beavers put on the end of the tie, about the angle of about forty-five degrees, and it would at the base of the original dam and held fast. Six ties were placed with similar skill, and an obstruction was formed against which the beavers floated driftwood, which the beavers floated down the stream. The angle at which the ties were placed served to force down water, which floated against them. Thus the foundation was completely undergoing reformation."

Moreover, they found the wreck of an old skiff, fifteen feet long, into the main span of the dam, and completely were it in the construction with green brush. If the whole job didn't show a high order of reasoning power and engineering genius I have done the beaver no injustice.

"And I have here that dam out last year."

"Certainly. We had no option. It was that or move the dam. The water level rose. A lower bridge is close to the shore of his dam. That is, and there are no boats, the living quarters being on the shore. The dam is the only protection from the caribou, and there is a central chamber, into which the water passage leads, tunnel rising upward into the ceiling, from which the beaver in pairs retire to their separate apartments opening on the large chamber."

"I am not sure that dam out last year."

Britons Getting Soft, Migration Conclave Is Told

Teach Girls How To Boil An Egg Before Sending Them Abroad, Major Beamish Tells London Meet

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Empire migration conference yesterday adopted a resolution expressing the opinion the time had come for early resumption of migration to the dominions.

It urged the United Kingdom government to invite representatives of the dominion governments to consider making early preparations for settlement and to indicate readiness to provide credit facilities for approved schemes.

PLANS FOR EMPIRE
Another resolution approved urged the British government to establish a statutory authority, immune from changes in government, with definite financial powers, charged with the whole-time duty in co-operation with similar bodies in the overseas dominions, to initiate, consider and aid the carrying into effect of schemes of encouragement for all forms of useful employment, migration and development upon properly supervised basis.

Beaver voices interrupted the even tenor of the conference. In the midst of many speeches about the empire, William Fraser, London, told the conference in forthright fashion he wanted to be an explorer.

Fraser had with him photographs of a couple of healthy-looking boys. To much hand-clapping and cheering, he said he wanted to go to South Africa.

"I can tell you honestly that on my different building jobs there are thousands of skilled craftsmen waiting a chance," he said. "We do not want them. We feel it would be a waste. We want only one flag—the Union Jack. We are loyal subjects of the King. Again the conference cheered. Major S. Beamish, of the Ministry of Labour, said the trouble with Major Beamish, was that he had been in the dominions and colonies, he said.

"Before you send them, Major Fraser, teach them to boil an egg first."

More of those young men die of indigestion than of anything else. Major Beamish spoke of voluntary recruiting as the most idiotic system in the world. "If we are to have a war, we must have a C3 people of some of the young men in the front line. The standard C3 people roared with laughter."

LOWEST GRADE
During the Great War years, C3 was the lowest grade of physical fitness, as determined by military medical examinations.

Major Beamish fired a parting shot: "The state of things in England is such that even the hens have become so tired they won't lay an egg."

Captain Appleby of the British Legion, said that he thought Britain had the finest boys and girls of the whole world, fit and ready for the great adventure anywhere.

Earlier in the day Sir Henry Page had said that the war had been a great success in that it had shown the world that the British Empire was a great power.

Major Beamish would have a big corporation created, backed by £100,000 to £200,000, to £250,000, to £275,000,000, with great transport, including airports, railways, docks, canals and irrigation.

Sir John suggested a government-guaranteed employment plan plan during the empire settlement period.

DUCE LEGIONS TO BE SWELLED BY 50,000

Troops Are For "East African Service And Special Emergencies"

ROME, Oct. 13.—The Fascist militia has called for approximately 50,000 blackshirt volunteers for East African service and in preparation for "special emergencies," a reliable source said today.

This activity is coincidental with the calling up of specialists in various conscript classes, and the despatch of several thousand additional troops to reinforce the Libyan garrisons.

The 80,000 volunteers were recruited being drawn from classes not immediately liable for conscription service, thus avoiding weakening the political strength of the regular army.

Part of these volunteers would be sent to Ethiopia to replace garrison troops being repatriated. The rest would be quartered in barracks in Italy awaiting "special emergencies."

An official source said call of specialists is a routine measure, with no bearing on the international situation.

Pressure at the center of the earth is computed at about 2,000 tons a square inch.
